Move over Edison: Evergreen to host inventor's camp

Evergreen Community Education will host Camp Invention®, a national summer day camp encouraging children to develop their innate creative abilities, for children entering second through sixth grade next school year.

"Camp Invention lets science come alive for campers and gets kids to think out of the box," said Sandy Leach, community education manager. "It is a challenging and fun-filled program. . . ."

The hands-on program encourages creative problem-solving through five inventive modules each day, including taking apart old machinery and using the parts to make original inventions.

The camp is held at Illahee Elementary July 28 to August 1, 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m. The camp costs $190. A 10 percent discount is offered for siblings. The cost goes up after May 31 and registration is limited to 110 children.

Call 800-968-4332 to register. For more information, visit the website at www.campinvention.org or call Community Education at 604-4082.

Clark County on the lookout for West Nile

No human cases of West Nile have yet to be reported in Washington, but health officials aren't taking any chances.

Clark County Health Department officials are on the lookout for West Nile virus, a disease spread between mosquitos, humans and other animals after mosquitos feed on infected birds.

Last year, two dead birds and two horses in Washington were confirmed to have West Nile, but no humans have acquired the disease in the state.

A "mosquito-service request line" at 360-397-8430 offers recorded instructions and a message service to make it easy for people to report mosquito nuisances and dead bird sightings.

For more information, visit the state Department of Health website at www.doh.wa.gov, then click "West Nile virus" under "Featured Topics."
