

YWCA adds executive staff

Patricia Pepin

Tami Bennett

Jo Jones

The YWCA of Clark County has hired Patricia L. Pepin as chief operations officer. Pepin has been corporate controller for COH-CARE, Seattle, a nonprofit holding company associated with children's medical facilities. She is a University of Washington graduate and former audit manager for Arthur Anderson and Company, Seattle.

Tami Bennett, who had been accounting manager for the ARC of North Carolina, has been appointed accounting manager for the YWCA. She is a graduate of Canyon College.

Jo Jones has been named administrative assistant to the YWCA's executive director, Beverly Robinson. Jones most recently was Clark County volunteer coordinator for Kaiser Permanente. Jones previously was an executive with the Greater Vancouver Chamber of Commerce for 26 years.

CREDC helps local businesses get millions of dollars in U.S. Government contracts

Sounds like an ad, doesn't it? It's true.

During the second quarter this year, the Procurement Technical Assistance Center at Columbia River Economic Development Council helped companies in Clark, Cowlitz, Skamania and Klickitat Counties get nearly $2.7 million in federal contracts.

Cowlitz County businesses were awarded contracts of $1.7 million; Clark County businesses, $690,478; Klickitat County businesses, $42,210.

Although there is a $100 annual subscription fee for a specialized data base, counseling services are free, according to CREDC's director of business expansion Deb Wallace.

Wallace says program specialists help companies get customized business bid proposals online and help prepare effective bid materials.

For further information, call Wallace at 567-1061.

YWCA SafeChoice issues plea for food

The Clark County YWCA SafeChoice Domestic Violence Shelter is running dangerously low on food, says spokesperson Kathy Deschner.

Donations of nonperishable food will be accepted at the YWCA office, 3609 Main Street. Call 906-9123 for further information.
