Hewlett-Packard wins Val Joshua Award

The YWCA of Clark County has selected Hewlett-Packard, Vancouver, as recipient of the Val Joshua Racial Justice Award for its diversity awareness and achievements.

Criteria for the award is the demonstration of leadership in working to eliminate racism, significant involvement in the struggle for peace, justice, freedom and dignity of all people, and a demonstrated commitment to self-determined social change for all people.

The award will be presented in a public ceremony at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 28, in the YWCA of Clark County, 3609 Main Street.

Last year's winner was Port of Vancouver commissioner Bob Moser.

Forum at the Library presents Joe Kortum, Wayne Branch and Todd Reeves

Three of southern Washington's newest leaders, Joe Kortum, president and CEO of Southwest Washington Medical Center, Wayne Branch, president of Clark College, and Todd Reeves, superintendent of the state School for the Deaf, will discuss what attracted them to the community in a Forum at the Library presentation at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 5, in the Vancouver Community Library.

The three leaders, new to the community within the past year, will also discuss the challenges they face in their new jobs.

The Forum at the Library is a free program.

Rosemere Neighborhood Association president says new status invigorating

The president of the disenfranchised Rosemere Neighborhood Association, Dvija Bertish, declared the association's new status as a "sovereign organization" to be somewhat invigorating.

Last week the Vancouver City Council revoked the neighborhood association's status as an official representative neighborhood association.

While no longer eligible for city grants, the association remains a valid 501(c)3 organization.

About 30 residents attended a Tuesday meeting of the association, at which time members decided to continue monthly meetings.

Meanwhile other residents of the Rosemere neighborhood have approached the city to begin a process of creating a recognized neighborhood association.
