National accreditation commission adopts Clark County Sheriff's gun safety guidelines

The National Commission on Accreditation of Law Enforcement Agencies has adopted guidelines for the safe storage of law enforcement agency firearms recommended by the Clark County Sheriff's office.

Clark County Sheriff Garry Lucas said, "It is our hope that this improvement in national standards will prevent another community from experiencing the tragedy we have struggled through."

The new guidelines adopted first by the county sheriff's office fulfills one of the promises made by the local department after the daughter of one of the deputy sheriff's was killed by the employee's duty weapon.
