

Five added to Clark College Alumni Hall of Fame

Daniels

Henderson

Herrington

Huston

Marshall

Roger Daniels, Nancy Wessels Henderson, Gregg Herrington, Dennis Huston and John Marshall were named Clark College Outstanding Alumni yesterday during opening ceremonies in the Penguin Student Union in Gaiser Hall.

They join 15 other graduates of the 72-year old community college who, according to Clark president Wayne Branch, “have forged distinguished careers in southwest Washington and around the world.”

“They all have traits of courage, creativity, perseverance and leadership,” said Ceci Ryan Smith, former Clark Alumni Association, who announced the 2005 winners of the prestigious awards.

They will be formally inducted into the college Outstanding Alumni Hall of Fame at a reception and program in Foster Hall on the college campus on May 26.

Daniels, class of 1975, often referred to as “Mr. Clark College,” began a long career at the college as assistant to the director of admissions in 1977. During his 13-year tenure as director of athletics and recruitment, Clark athletic teams won 28 league championships and five northwest championships. As director of recruitment and outreach services at the college, he was instrumental in developing Clark’s Running Start program.

Daniels was named Camas-Washougal Citizen of the Year in 2001, and was named to the Northwest Athletic Association for Community Colleges Hall of Fame in 2002.

Henderson, class of 1971, went on to a distinguished career in the U.S. Army and is a retired colonel. While taking a full academic load at Clark, Henderson worked at three part-time jobs and coached a girl’s softball team and was a member of the college orchestra. The holder of a doctorate in physical therapy, Henderson was chief of Physical Therapy at Madigan Army Medical Center when she retired.

Henderson’s Army career included assignments in El Salvador and Columbia.

Herrington, class of 1965, is an award-winning 29-year veteran of The Columbian staff and currently writes editorials and an opinion column. Herrington is a former Oregonian staffer, and for five years he was with Associated Press in Washington, D.C. Before joining The Columbian, Herrington was assistant AP bureau chief in Seattle, directing news coverage in Washington and Alaska.

Herrington is a member of the alumni association’s board of directors and is on the advisory panel for the WSU Vancouver Foley Institute.

Huston, class of 1961, retired as head basketball coach of Weber State College, Utah. He was an all-star member of Clark’s 1960-61 basketball team. After earning a masters degree from Western Washington University, Huston returned to Clark, where he became head basketball coach. He also held coaching positions at the University of Washington, University of Wyoming and Stanford University.

Huston is one of the founders and a former president of the Penguin Athletic Club and is a member of the college foundation board of directors. He is a sought-after motivational speaker.

Marshall, class of 1957, earned masters degrees from Portland State University and Carnegie Mellon University, taught school at Hudson’s Bay High School and completed a distinguished career in city government. He is a former Vancouver acting city manager.

Marshall helped form Vancouver’s Sister City program with Joyo City, Japan, was project coordinator for Vancouver's One Place Across Time, and helped establish and was the first director of the Vancouver National Historic Reserve Trust. He helped develop the city's Celebrate Freedom programs, coordinated the Medal of Honor Convention and brought Gen. Colin Powell to Vancouver to deliver an annual Gen. George C. Marshall address.

Marshall holds a Congressional Medal of Honor Society Award. He was named Vancouver's 1999 First Citizen.

Medical center kicks off $146 million patient tower

Southwest Washington Medical Center president and CEO Joe Kortum, accompanied by board of trustee members and medical staff, announced the kick-off of the third phase of the medical center's modernization and expansion program, an eight-story, 154-room patient tower at the Mill Plain campus.

The tower will also house 15 new operating rooms and the center's state-of-the-art heart and vascular center.

Construction preparations and reconfiguration of parking space already underway are resulting in changes of access to departments at the medical center. Beginning Monday, April 18, visitors to the medical center are to use the 92nd Avenue entrance. Patients, depending on departments they will be using, may also enter the center from 87th Avenue. Emergency patients and patients using the Physician's Pavilion may use the Mother Joseph Place entrance off Mill Plain Boulevard.

News brief

A two-part educational series on automobile driving issues of seniors 55 and older is being presented by Southwest Washington Medical Center from 1 to 5 p.m. Friday, April 15, and Saturday, April 16, in the Fir-Willow Room in the Memorial Health Center. Classes are $10. To register, call 514-2190.

Thursday headlines from at home and around the world:

House OKs Clark Public Utilities appliance repair bill--Columbian

Clark County third in state population growth; demographers say dissatisfied Oregonians moving across the river account for the 3.5 surge in the county--Oregonian

Uncovering Vancouver: Pat Jollota preserves the stories from Vancouver's past--Oregonian, Jessica Tanne

Internet snag hits Comcast customers all over the state--Seattle Times

Governmental leaders focus on La Center casino benefits--Columbian, Margaret Ellis

HP pondering local cuts--Columbian, Julia Anderson

C-TRAN expected to begin reducing service next month--Columbian, Erin Middlewood

Legislators say "We've had an awful session" Delay tactics, broken deals cited for failed bills, bad feelings--Seattle P-I, Chris McGann

Oregon Supreme court voids gay marriages--KATU, AP, Charles E. Beggs

Kulongoski pushing for civil unions law--KATU, AP, Brad Cain

Tymer's calling it quits Friday, after 63 years as a local institution--Columbian, Jonathan Nelson

Car bombs kill 18 in Baghdad--Washington Postr, Bassam Sebti and Ellen Knickmeyer

Thursday on the air

3rd Distinguished Lecture Series—4:30 p.m. CVTV

Portland Beavers at Fresno (live)—7 p.m. KKAD

Clark County Land Use Hearings (live)—7 p.m. CVTV

Dallas at the Portland Blazers (live)—7:30 p.m. TNT, KXL, KXMG

Town Tabloids and the weather

Marilyn Willis getting rave review. 🏠 Betty Mage giving history lessons. 🏠 Bob Moser stirring up memories. 🏠 David Smith handling props. 🏠 Micah West distinguishing himself. 🏠 Thursday, showers and sunbreaks, 53. Friday, windy and rainy, 51. Saturday, showers return, 53.